

Advisory Committee

Minnesota watershed law requires that each watershed district have an advisory committee appointed annually by the Managers. The committee is responsible for advising and assisting the managers on all matters affecting the interests of the District, and to make recommendations to the managers on all contemplated projects and improvements.

As previously mentioned, the Advisory Committee played a key role in formulating the District's 1967 Overall Plan. The committee's membership was comprised of community leaders, many of whom served the district over a several years. Indeed, in 1970, three years after the 1967 plan, the advisory committee still included 13 of the original 16 members, and 10 years after that, 11 of the original advisory committee were still members.

The Current Advisory committee numbers eight, and includes representatives from several lake associations as well as representatives of key agencies.
